Theme

In the great transition from global security to universe security we present The American Tradition—our country's character.
Through the American Tradition . . . we believe in the democracy of Lincoln in which "no man is good enough to govern another without the other's consent."

in the liberty and freedom that we cannot have unless we are willing to give it to others.

in the assurance of the inalienable right to the life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness made explicit in our great documents—the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, the great speeches of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln.

In this democracy—whose character is inherent in our own—with our faith in people, born in the God-given dignity and rights of the individual, we can look to the universe as Robert Frost looked toward the West—

For the universe is ours before we are the universe's.
. . . Something we are withholding leaves us weak;
Now we find out that it is ourselves
We are withholding from our universe of living
And we shall find salvation in surrender.

Monsignor Jacobs guides Santa of the basic principles essential

Santa Clara Church
323 E Street
Oxnard, California

June 10 1962.

To the members of the Senior class of Santa Clara Highschool.

My dear Seniors,

As the day of your graduation draws near, your happiness reaches a climax. You think of the long years of preparation and the final arrival at your goal. We, your teachers, are happy with you, because we have shared your years of preparation and have seen your gradual progress.

Our satisfaction at the moment of your success is perhaps more tempered with the realization that the battle of life is by no means over – in fact it has scarcely begun.

You emerge from a well-ordered world, where principles are firm and constant and conduct clearly defined, where duties are unavoidable and God and country are held high. You now – or not so long from now – enter upon a different world, that has more elastic guidelines than the one you have left.

Our present day society is sometimes described as pluralistic and this means that contradictory philosophies exist side by side. This condition brings spiritual and cultural weakness in spite of our technological strength. We can fly to the moon, but are unable to dispose of such evils as Communism.

You will now soon notice, that people act from contradictory motives and – as sometimes seems – from no motives at all. It is a shock to a well-ordered mind to observe such confusion. Worse still, since we are influenced by our environment, we conform to the confused pattern of modern belief and practise, unless we are most careful.

The principles you have learned at Santa Clara can make you a useful member of society. Your understanding of them can be amplified; your experience can grow. These principles, however, cannot be replaced. For your own good you are committed to them as the navigator is to the star and indeed as man is to God.

With prayers and good wishes,

Anthony J. Jacobs. V. F.
pastor.

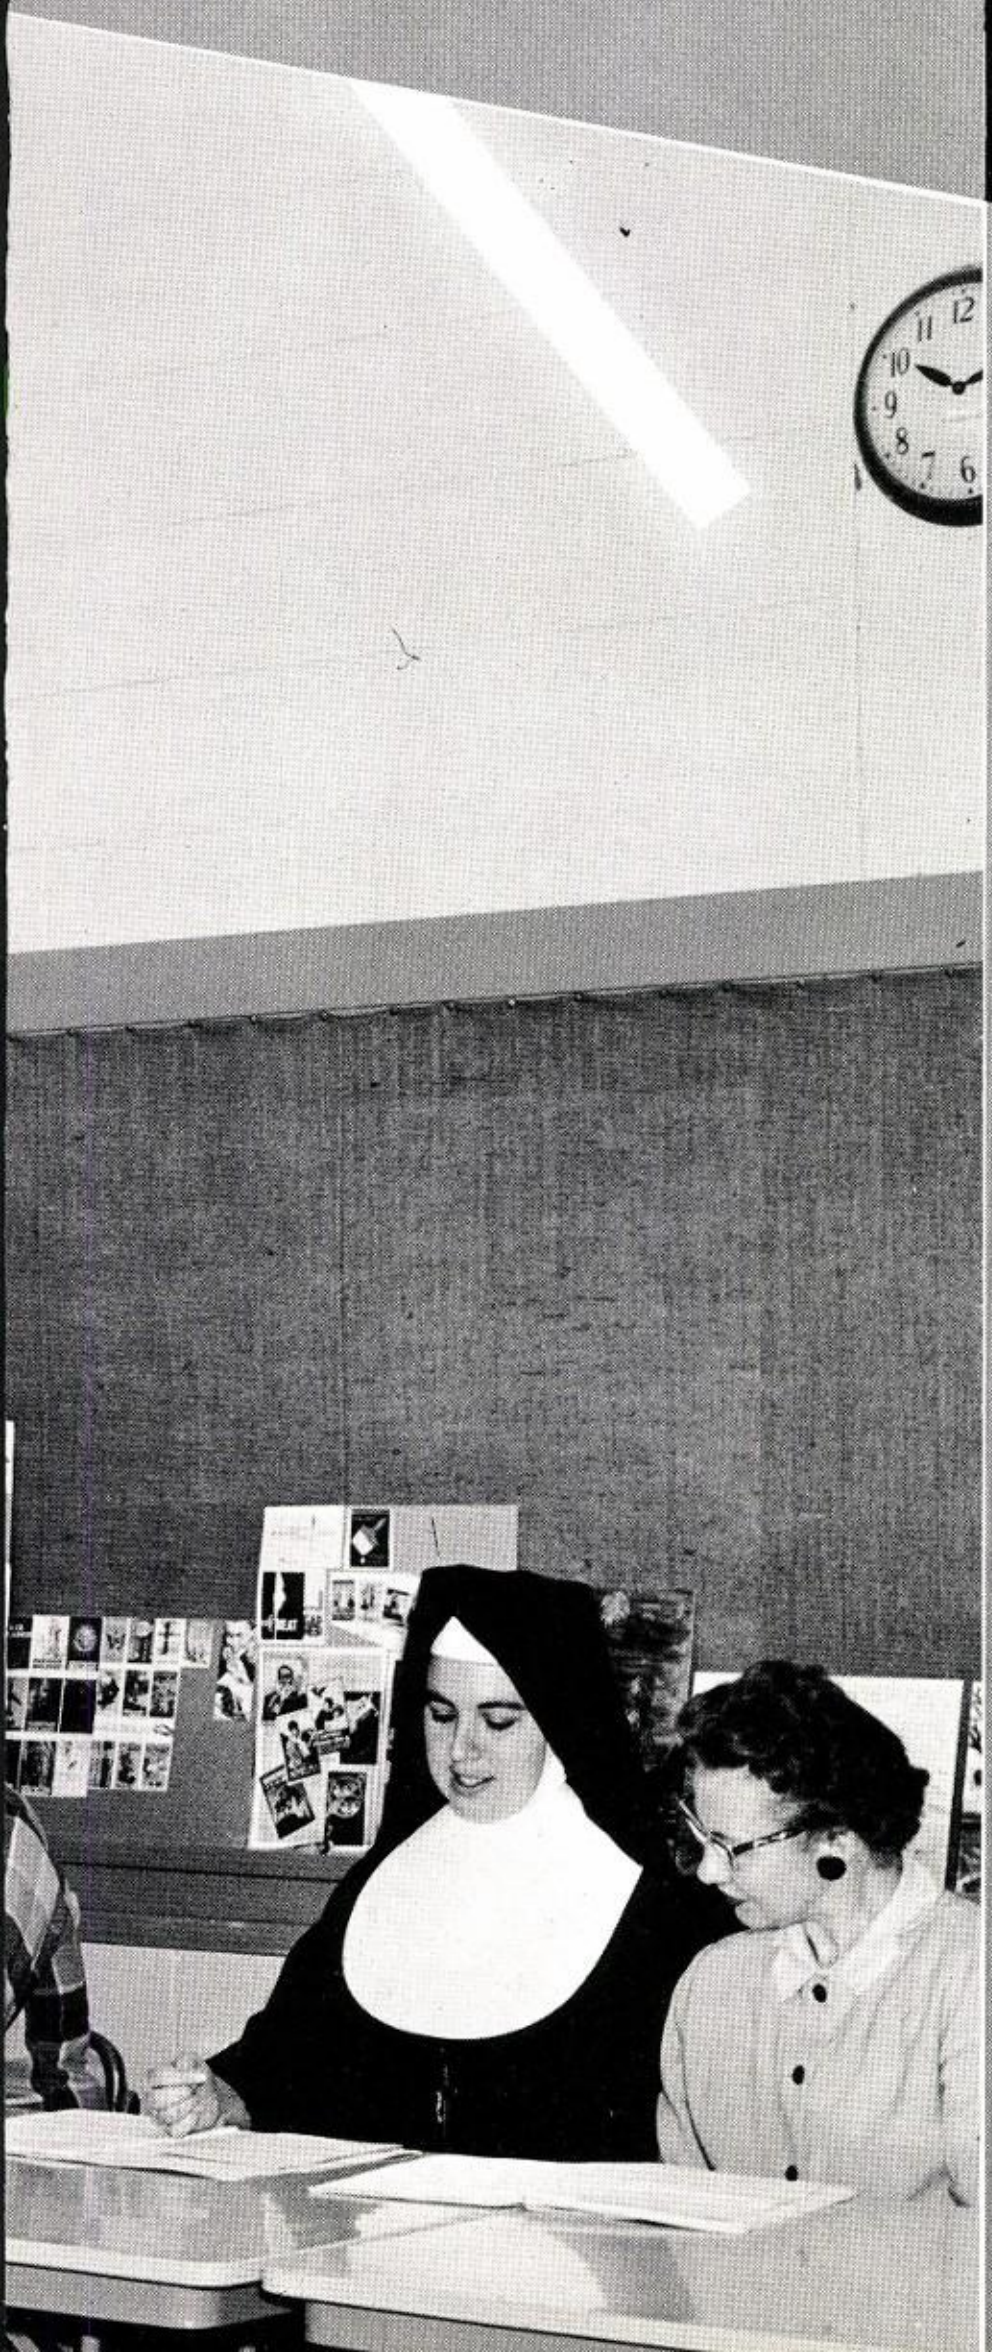
TRATION



Dedication

Reverend Carrol O'Sullivan
Principal

He was taken from among men—appointed for men in the things pertaining to God—that he may offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. He chose the highest calling. He is a priest.

His attitude is tender toward the bashful, gentle toward the distant, and merciful toward the absurd. He makes light of favors while he does them; and he seems to be receiving when he is conferring. He is a gentle man.

He has a clear conscious view of his own opinions, and a truth in developing them. He is able to detect what is superficial and disregard what is irrelevant. He is a scholar.

Because he is a scholar, because he is a gentleman, because he is a priest, we dedicate our 1962 edition of Onward to our principal, Father O'Sullivan.

Albert Stewart and Glenn True pose for Gerald Brown. The three were "men behind the cameras" for this year's yearbook staff.

Lynn Larson, Barbara Kochinski, and Teresa Schafer endeavor to get the most effective "scoop" for each story.
